

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

With extreme diffidence the compiler sends forth this genealogical work, is thoroughly aware of its imperfections and incompleteness, and claims for it nothing more than a conscientious, laborious effort to collect and preserve the family history, as much of it as could be ascertained by extensive correspondence, searching old papers, town records, etc. Some years since Mr. Asahel Newell died, leaving papers that the compiler had gradually expanded until quite a mass of material had collected, much too valuable to be lost. He had desired that all the historical matter collected should be published; other friends also desired it. The work would gladly have been committed to other and more competent hands, had there been any such ready and willing to undertake it.

Only those who have been engaged in genealogical studies can justly estimate the measure of labor, research, correspondence and patience required in a task of this kind. The very first obstacle to be encountered is the ignorance prevailing in most families as to more remote ancestors. And even where some indirect clue has been obtained, and considerable attention given the matter, there are apt to be errors and contradictions to a provoking extent. Where families are broken and distributed widely by the emigration of the different members, what few documents have existed are apt to be impaired or lost, and the traditions varied. Very few have any idea of the amount of time and labor necessary to compile a family genealogy, even where the circumstances are the most favorable: to all this, in the present instance, the cares and burden of a family were added. Transcribed, often, from almost unintelligible documents—the handwriting and figures alike well-nigh undecipherable—many errors are charged to the compiler that rightly belong to those furnishing the material. Those who have accomplished a work of this kind deserve more credit, a kindlier recognition and more substantial returns than are commonly accorded—for pecuniary loss is almost an invariable surety.

The volume thus goes forth with confessed imperfections, soliciting a charitable judgment of those interested, and of all others into whose hands it may chance to fall.

The compiler would cheerfully and most heartily acknowledge her great indebtedness, for assistance rendered, to Mr. Gad Andrews, of Southington; Mrs. Orson (Walkley) Stow, of Plantsville; Deacon Alfred Andrews, of New Britain; Dr. D. W. Pat-

Hartford—Farmington.

Thomas Newell was the first of the name to settle in Farmington, whither he came from Hartford, in its early settlement—it is said from Hertfordshire, England. At what time he came to this country is unknown. He married Rebeckah Olmstead, a neice of John and Richard, and sister of the first James of Hartford (see Savage), with whom she came over to Boston. September 16th, 1632, six years after the settlement of Connecticut by the English. Thomas Newell appears in Farmington among the original settlers not long after 1640. In the church records he is enrolled a member February 7th, 1653, and his wife July 12th, 1763. In 1669 his name appears on the list of freemen; in 1672 on the list of the eighty-four proprietors. In 1673 he was one of the preliminary committee who went to view Mattatuck (now Waterbury), as a place for a new settlement. (See History of Waterbury). The same year he was one of the petitioners for liberty of planting ye same. Subsequently he signed the articles, taking the place of Samuel Gridley, but declined joining the new settlement. The early records of Farmington having been destroyed by fire, it has been impossible to trace the relationship of brother to Abraham, who settled in Roxbury, Mass., in 1634, which many claim. He died September 13th, 1689, leaving an estate of £700. His widow died February 24th, 1698. She was remembered in the legacies of Doctor John Olmstead's widow, who was left wealthy, bequeathing £50 to the poor. His house was just at the north part of the village, fronting the Main street, showing much taste in the selection of a building spot. Tradition says an Indian fort was located back of it.

DISTRIBUTION OF HIS ESTATE.

"Whereas, Thomas Newell, of Farmington, lately deceased, died without will, it is mutually agreed between the widow of said Thomas and the children that were present at the County Court when the distribution of said estate was made, viz.:

"The oldest son, John Newell, Samuel Newell, John Stanley, Thomas North, that married two of the daughters, Hester and Hannah; that what each child had formerly received of their father Thomas shall be reckoned and accounted as part of their portion, and with what the oldest son, John Newell, had already received he is to have a double portion of all the land of his deceased father of all sorts and kinds whatsoever, and after the widow's thirds are taken out of all the personal or movable effects, then the aforesaid eldest son, John Newell, agreed to take up with a single or equal proportion of the personal estate with his younger brothers and sisters; all which above written the eldest son, John Newell, doth fully accept as his full portion out of his deceased father's estate, relinquishing any farther claim or right he now hath or might have on his deceased father's estate, out of his natural love and affection unto his other brothers and sisters.

"Further, the widow and relict of the said Thomas Newell reserveth the full disposal of her third of all the movable estate for her own maintainance. It is also agreed by the widow and children that Rebeckah Woodford, grandchild of the said Thomas, that hath lived several years with her grandfather and mother, shall have £10 in movable estate given her out of her grandfather's estate before any other distribution is made.

"Also it is mutually agreed by the sons of the said Thomas Newell that they possess all the lands of their father upon these conditions, that they do pay their sisters so much in current money, for that part of their portion; that is to say, after that value. If the movable estate will not pay their portion—that is to say, after their value that the land is appraised at—they are to redeem in country pay. Lastly, we have given to the worshipful court the several sums that each of the children have already received, as near as we can, instructing them to make equal distribution of the forementioned estate, according to our agreement, unto all which we have set our hands and seals this eighth of November, 1689.

Signed and sealed in the presence of GEORGE CRANE, CALEB STANLY.	}	REBECKAH NEWELL, JOHN NEWELL, SAMUEL NEWELL, JOHN STANLY, THOMAS NORTH."

Kensington.

Ruth, only child of Matthew Cole (75) and Mary (Newell) Cole, b. in Kensington, October 29, 1742; m. General Selah Hart, Dec. 22, 1763, and lived in the east part of the parish. He united with the church in Kensington in 1763. She joined in 1771. A clause in his will may be of interest: "I give to my dear wife Ruth, for her sole use and disposal, my chaise, the whole of my household furniture, one-half of the moveable property which shall remain after my debts are paid." He died June, 1806, aged 74. She died Jan. 15, 1844, aged 101 years, 2 months and 16 days, being the oldest person that ever died in Berlin. Extraordinary in age, she was not less distinguished by strength of character, correctness of moral principle and holiness of life. She adorned the profession of the gospel during nearly three-quarters of a century. A friend of God and her species her memory will triumph over the wrecks of time. No children. [See Andrus—Hart genealogy.]

101 Farmington.—New Britain.

Elizabeth, first daughter of Captain John Newell (48) and Elizabeth Hawley, m. John Clark, lived where Omri North did in 1864, in New Britain, next door neighbor to her sister Lydia Stanly; m. September 2, 1742. This family was one of the three set off, or rather excepted, in the incorporation of the parish, and attended church in Farmington. They chose to go there, and it appears never withdrew from that parish. Mrs. Clark was partially deaf, and was accustomed to stand in the pulpit in order to hear. She died Feb. 2, 1791, aged 70 years. He died June 10, 1782, aged 70.

CHILDREN.

102. Jane, daughter of Captain John Clark and Elizabeth (Newell) Clark; m. Dec. 21, 1785, Elijah Francis, b. Jan. 6, 1760. He was a shoemaker and tanner, and learned his trade of Deacon Timothy Stanly; was in the Revolutionary War as a teamster at 16 years of age; was elected deacon of the church July 19, 1822. He represented the town of Berlin in the Legislature several times. He was one of the members of the South Church in 1842; seldom spoke in public, but was gifted in prayer. He died Oct. 30, 1846, aged 87. Jane, admitted to the church August 7, 1785, was a woman of vigorous intellect and kindly feelings, a neat housekeeper and greatly respected; d. Feb. 16, 1849, aged 85. They left no children.

103.

New Britain.

Lydia, daughter of Captain John Newell (48) of Farmington, and his wife Elizabeth Hawley, b. May 20, 1728, m. Timothy Stanly May 5, 1757, son of Thomas 2d, and his wife Esther (Cowles). They were both admitted to church August 28, 1768. She was a woman noted for her energy and piety; d. December 17, 1826, aged 89. He was a tanner and shoemaker by trade; his house stood opposite to that of his father, north part of Stanley street, on the east side of the road—subsequently owned and occupied by his son Oliver. He was elected deacon in 1795. Late in life he was somewhat deaf, and stood in the pulpit the better to hear. His hair was then white, and he used an ear horn. His habits were strictly puritannical; a careful observer of holy time. His wife shaved his face Saturday afternoon invariably, and all preparation was made for the due observance of the Sabbath. He died April 28, 1817, aged 89 years, 10 months.

Bristol.

Rev. Samuel Newell, second son of Samuel (46) and Sarah Norton (Newell), b. March 1, 1714, in Farmington; graduated at Yale College 1739. He was ordained pastor of the Congregational church in Bristol August 12, 1747; m. May 4, 1749, Mary (Hart), widow of Timothy Root, of Southington, daughter of Deacon John Hart, of Farmington. She was b. March 9, 1717, in Farmington. He continued pastor of the church in Bristol until his death, which occurred on the 10th day of February, 1789, in his 75th year, and his monument at South burial ground in Bristol shows where he was buried. Mary, his widow, d. in Bristol November 28, 1797, aged 81 years.

Rev. Samuel Newell was admitted to full communion with Southington church October 24, 1736. Nothing is known of his early life. Graduating at Yale College in 1739 we again lose sight of him until he is a licentiate, and appears as a candidate before the new Society of New Cambridge (now Bristol) in the autumn of 1744. A little later, December 3, (during the interval he was probably in Windham Co.—see Miss Larned's History, p. 452), a vote was passed to hire him, but with some opposition. Declining, he had overtures repeatedly made to him during the following three years, but the local difficulties prevented his acceptance. Finally, however, he accepted a call, and was ordained August 12, 1747. Mr. Curtis, the first pastor of this church, assisted in the services.

Here Mr. Newell labored during his active ministry. He was a decided Calvinist, and sympathized with the Whitfield revivals, while Mr. Curtis and other clerical neighbors did not. For several years he held to the half-way covenant, but toward the latter part of his ministry abandoned the principle as unscriptural. Mr. Newell was an ardent loyalist (he acted as chaplain for a time) during the "old French war," and preached several times upon the duty of obedience to rightful civil authority. And he was no less opposed to the king and warmly attached to the cause of the colonies during the Revolutionary War. For brief periods he acted as chaplain to the patriot armies. In 1783 he was afflicted with paralysis, and feeling that his time had come requested a colleague, offering to relinquish his salary. After a year or two he had so far recovered as to be able to resume his duties in a measure, and being without a colleague supplied the church till within a short time of his death, February 10, 1789.

The Hon. Tracy Peck in his Historical Address thus speaks of him: "Mr. Newell's connection with this church and people seems to have been harmonious and prosperous; and one would suppose he was the great centre and head of the community. His word had power and his advice was often sought in worldly as well as in spiritual matters, and when given it was conclusive. He acquired much landed estate, on which he often employed many of his parishioners. He had the ability, and seemed willing to assist others in procuring homes and the means of living. He adhered to his Calvinistic doctrines while many clergymen in the vicinity favored and adopted the Armenian, or those of the Episcopal Church. These as preached by Mr. Newell gave him a name abroad, and induced many to leave their homes in other towns and remove here to enjoy his preaching. My own paternal ancestor* sold out and removed from Meriden for this purpose, and he, with his wife, lived and died in good standing in the church."

His funeral occurred on the 12th; the sermon preached by Rev. Timothy Pitkin, of Farmington. It was published, and the following extract from it is subjoined:

* * "What now remains is to draw a portrait of his character, deposit his body in the dust, drop a tear, and take our leave of him until the resurrection morning.

"It was the pleasure of the Creator to furnish Mr. Newell with a good genius, strong mind and solid judgment; he was well acquainted with books, things and men; a sociable and faithful friend, of a steady and firm fortitude of mind, yet had tender feelings in his own and in the distresses of others; was an open, plain-hearted, honest man, spake his opinion freely and without flattery, gave every one his due; and I do not know that I ever saw the man who was a greater stranger to envy. As to his theological knowledge, was a good and thorough divine, especially in practical divinity and experimental; sound in the faith, willing all should know his principles. As a preacher, his sermons well composed and methodized; aimed not so much at the ornaments of language and beauties of style as the truth, for he determined to know nothing among his people save Christ Jesus and him crucified. He did not daub with untempered mortar, nor play around men's consciences as if he was afraid to give them pain and uneasiness, but thundered forth the law to rouse up and alarm sinners, and also proclaimed the news of the gospel and displayed the glorious wonders of redeeming love; in short, was a plain, fervent experimental preacher, for he appeared to preach those truths which he felt in his own heart, and that Jesus whom he knew. He gave me the pleasure of being one of his most intimate friends, opened his heart often upon experimental religion, and conversed as well as preached upon the works of the law, and the power of the divine spirit in awakening, regenerating and converting the sinners, as one who had experienced those things in his own soul. He had a deep, impressed sense of the danger sinners were in by nature, possessed of a great love for the souls of men and longed for their salvation, ardently wished for a revival of religion, and when he heard of any revival and outpouring of the spirit it gave him

joy. He often conversed with me upon the subject of mortality, formerly and lately, and appeared to look out for his own dissolution; not only realized but familiarized death. When he viewed his departure at hand did not appear terrified, but as one who waited for the coming of his Lord and Master; and his Lord and Master came, dismissed him from his pains, and trouble, and charge here, and with calmness and composure he fell asleep."

Mr. Newell was buried at Bristol, and is the only minister of the Congregational body that is entombed there. The following is the epitaph upon his tombstone:

"Here lieth interred the body of ye Rev. Samuel Newell, A. M., late pastor of the church in New Cambridge. A gentleman of good genius, solid judgment; sound in the faith; a fervent, experimental preacher; of unaffected piety; kindest of husbands, tenderest of fathers; the best of friends, and an ornament of the ministry; and having served his generation faithfully, by the will of God, with serenity and calmness fell on sleep February 10, 1789, in the 75th year of his age and the 42d of his ministry. Death, great proprietor of all, 'tis thine 'to tread out empires and to quench the stars.'"

Southington.

Deacon Pomroy, son of Isaac and Rachel (Pomroy) Newell, b. April 2, 1745, m. November 28, 1770, Elizabeth, daughter of Abel and Mary (Couch) Carter. She was b. November, 1750. He was chosen deacon of the Congregational church September 3, 1795, which office he held until his death, October 22, 1831. They lived at Newell Corners. She d. February 13, 1834, aged 83 years. It is enough to say of him that he was an eminent saint and sustained a spotless character. He was one of the few whom the world hesitates not to pronounce "a just and righteous man." In the days when it was no vice to drink, he joined others at the close of the game in disposing of flip. One now living remembers seeing him leap a five-rail fence and outstripping others in the race for Chauncey Dunham's tavern. Undignified as some may think this to have been, he was beloved and respected by all. Mr. Newell was a very intelligent man. He had possessed himself of the works of leading New England writers, as Edwards, Bellamy and Hopkins, and carefully read them. From his early years he was quite a distinguished theologian for a layman. He loved to talk on the questions that then agitated the theological world. In his later years he became quite deaf, and some still living remember his occupying the pulpit with his pastor, and standing during the sermon listening to every word. He was of a very pleasant disposition and fond of a good story. To all he was considerate, and from all he received affection and confidence.—[See Timlow's History of Southington.]

He was occupied chiefly in manual labor until his 19th year, when he began to prepare for college, which he entered at New Haven in 1830, graduating in 1834. For a time he taught the Academy in Southington, and then pursued his theological studies at New Haven. He was ordained an Evangelist October, 1838, and settled pastor of the Presbyterian church at Evansville, Ind., November 24, 1838. He remained there nine years, and then accepted the appointment of agent for Marietta College a year. He supplied the Presbyterian church at Piqua, O., for two years. In 1850 he removed to Cincinnati and published a magazine, The Western Emporium, and was also principal of a young ladies' seminary in that city. He supplied a church in Georgetown, Ohio, in 1854-5, and churches in St. Paul, Northfield and Cannon Falls, Minnesota, in 1855-6. Mr. Barnes has in later years engaged himself successfully in planting Congregational churches in the West, and was for a time an agent for the American Missionary Association.

210. Southington—Stratford.

Elizabeth, daughter of Roxanna (Newell) Barnes (165), b. Jan. 12, 1811, m. Jesse Olney, of Hartford, May 4, 1829. He was b. October 12, 1798, in Tolland county, and from his earliest childhood had his mind fixed upon a good education, and however scanty his advantages he resolutely set himself to work to make the most of his time and talents. He was a diligent reader, and lost no opportunity of improving his mind. He entered the Whitesboro Institute, N. Y., and finished the course of study there pursued. For a time he taught in Binghampton, N. Y. In 1821 he became the principal of the Stone School, Hartford, and held this position twelve years. In 1828 he published his first edition of the Geography and Atlas that at once took rank among the best of text books. He was at this time thirty years old, and had he now ended his career as an educator his reputation would have been great. But he afterwards prepared a series of text books in Arithmetic, History and Reading. His "National Preceptor" is admitted to be unsurpassed as a work of its kind. His "History of the United States" and "Family Book of History" were very popular. In 1833 he removed to Southington, and here had his home for 21 years. To perfect his text books he visited Europe several times. He was ten times elected member of the Connecticut Legislature. In all his offices of trust he was competent and reliable, and secured the public favor. It has been written of him—"A self-made man himself, he appreciated and sympathized with the struggles of his fellow-men toward education and an honorable career, and more young men than any one was allowed to know except himself, have been aided by him, not only with wise counsels and influential exertions, but by generous assistance from his purse as well, to slide them over the shoals which beset them. His mind enriched by all mental gifts, his heart sympathetic and fervent with fresh and glowing impulses, which endured to the end. His gracious life endeared him to all who knew him, while his blameless moral character ennobled all his associations. He was of a commanding presence, and to the young made himself particularly agreeable. Mr. Olney, while a resident of Southington, was not only the friend of education, but a faithful laborer in the work of raising the standard of common schools. Only those who carefully note his labors in that direction can rightly estimate his influence in this town. His tendency of religious thought was to a liberal extreme, and this has led some narrow minds to underrate his influence in education. But no one has ever lived in the town who has more thoroughly quickened the public feeling in behalf of education. Mr. Olney was the original mover in founding the Unitarian church. He was its leading and governing spirit during its history. Soon after he left the town it ceased to exist. He died at Stratford, July 31, 1872. His Geography passed through ninety-five editions, embracing altogether a million and a half copies; National Preceptor thirty-five editions, History of the United States forty-three editions, and all his other books had a very large sale.

The following certificate of membership of the Order of Cincinnati is given by bequest to the eldest grandson in the family, and is now in the possession of Mr. Henry Hooker Newell, Great Bend, Pa. :

"Be it known that SIMEON NEWELL, Captain in the Connecticut line of the American army, is a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, instituted by the officers of the American Army at the period of its dissolution, as well to commemorate the great event which gave independence to North America, as for the laudable purpose of inculcating the duty of laying down in peace arms assumed for public defense, and uniting in acts of brotherly affection and bonds of perpetual friendships the members constituting the same.

"IN TESTIMONY whereof, I, the President of the said Society, have hereunto set my hand, at Mount Vernon, in the State of Virginia, this fourth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-six, and in the eleventh year of the independence of the United States.

"By order.

"S. KNOX, Secretary."

"G. WASHINGTON, President.

307.

Mardin, East Turkey.

Rev. Alpheus Newell, third son of Roderic Clark (283), of Windham, N. Y., and his wife Fanny R., daughter of Amos Upson, Jr., of Southington, and his wife Kesiah Root, b. July 17, 1843, a twin brother with Alfred Ely; m. March 26, 1868, Mercy Louise Morse, daughter of Justin, of Jewett, Green county, b. Feb., 1846. Mr. Andrews graduated at Williams College in 1864; studied theology at Union Seminary, New York, and was licensed to preach April, 1867. He is now a missionary at Mardin, in Eastern Turkey. They sailed from New York April, 1868. The maiden name of Mrs. Andrews' mother was Luna Ann Wattles. She first married Newell P. Andrews. He died, when she (2) m. Justin Morse. She d. in Mardin, Turkey, Dec. 29, 1873.

OBITUARY NOTICE.

Died in Mardin, Eastern Turkey, Dec. 29, 1873, Mrs. M. Louise Andrus, aged 28, wife of Rev. Alpheus Newell Andrus (307), missionary of the American Board to Eastern Turkey. This intelligence has saddened many hearts and awakened much sympathy for the bereaved husband and motherless children so far away. Mr. Andrews and his young wife reached their mission field Nov. 20, 1868, where both of them have been laboring with untiring industry and devotion for six years. She was a young lady every way fitted to bear him company and aid him in the great work to which he had devoted his life; an earnest, gentle, loving and lovable Christian woman, who for all these years has made his life one of increasing influence. Intelligent and cheerful, she was quick and ready to adapt herself to all the new and varying circumstances of missionary life, and had greatly endeared herself to her fellow laborers, and to the people among whom she was called to labor. But death, relentless and unsparing, has brought desolation to that far away home. The Master of the field has taken to Himself one of His most faithful and self-sacrificing servants, and given the Church another proof of that womanly heroism which has led so many Christian women to leave country and friends for an early grave in foreign lands. Such men and women are always dear to us, but never are they drawn so closely to our hearts as when the weight of sorrow shuts down upon them. Mr. Andrews (2) m. Miss Parmlee, Oct. 8, 1875, at Toledo, Ohio, while on a visit to this country, and sailed for Turkey, Oct. 30th.

153. Southington—Nelson, N. H.

Gad Newell, ninth child of Isaac (54) and Rachel Pomroy, born and baptized September 10, 1763; graduated at Yale College 1786; m. Sophie Clapp, of Easthampton, Mass., June 10, 1795, and became a clergyman of the Congregational faith. He d. at Nelson, Cheshire county, New Hampshire, February 26, 1859, aged 76. He studied divinity in 1787. She d. September 12, 1840. He was very frail as a boy, and yet he outlived all the other members of the family who were supposed to be physically stronger. Until his 16th year he remained upon the farm, but his health failing and his parents regarding him as unfitted for agricultural life apprenticed him to the trade of a saddler.

While learning this trade his right hand became in some way injured so that he was compelled to abandon it. He now began studying with Rev. Mr. Robinson, and entered Yale College in his 19th year. A revival was in progress in the college when he entered. Very soon he became interested in religion and was converted, but did not join the college church until his Junior year. Graduating in 1785, he engaged for a year as teacher at Milford. At the close of the year he returned home and began the study of theology with Mr. Robinson, and then with Rev. John Smalley, of New Britain. He was licensed by the Hartford South Association in session at Marlborough June 2, 1789. He preached his first sermon at Kensington for Rev. Dr. Upson. His health was such that he could not undertake a pastoral charge, and in fact it seemed doubtful if he ever could. He remained at his father's house, and on February 20, 1790, his father deeded him six acres of land in the northwest corner of his farm, and he probably expected to spend his days in Southington.

In the summer of 1793 he took a journey into New Hampshire, it is supposed at the invitation of the Rev. Levi Lankton, a native of Southington, but then settled at East Alstead in that State. He was invited to supply the church at Nelson, and the following spring received and accepted a call to that place; was ordained and installed June 11, 1794. According to a usage of that time and town he was settled by the town and by it supported until 1814. Mr. Newell entered upon his work with energy and zeal. He visited the schools and habitually heard the pupils on Saturdays in the Assembly's Catechism. He was one of the earliest advocates of temperance in that State. His entire ministry covered a period of forty-two years, and was one of unusual fruitfulness. If we take into account the population of the town, his ministry, relatively, stands above the average. Three hundred and one were added to the church, of which number two hundred and forty-five were on profession. Of one hundred and thirty-eight baptisms, fifty were adults and eighty-eight infants. He united in marriage three hundred couples and attended five hundred and twenty-two funerals. The manual of the church of which he was pastor, published in 1858, thus speaks of him: "Mr. Newell is still living, and although in his 95th year, he regularly attends divine worship upon the Sabbath, and up to the present winter has hardly failed to be present at the weekly prayer meeting of the church, and frequently leads in prayer, and uniformly conducts the exercises when the officiating clergyman is absent. Until the present winter he has frequently offered one of the prayers during public worship on the Sabbath, and statedly taken a part in the administration of the sacrament. Age has comparatively done little yet to impair his physical abilities. His countenance is as fresh, and he walks as spry as a man of sixty, and his voice is as loud and as free from trembling as any minister of my acquaintance. His interest in the welfare of Zion is unabated, and his earnest prayers and exhortations evince a mind deeply sensible of the worth of souls, and the importance of their salvation." In person Mr. Newell was of medium size, with a small round face, very pleasing in manner, and of dignified bearing. In the pulpit he was simple in expression, free from all mannerism, and without display of voice or gesture. His power was in what he said and in the deep convictions of his soul. He d. Feb. 25, 1859, aged 95 years, 5 months and 15 days.

Josiah Newell, son of Samuel (46) and Sarah (Norton) Newell, of Southington, b. Aug. 17, 1722, in Farmington. He m. Feb. 18, 1745, Mary Upson. She was b. Jan. 21, 1722. He held the military rank of lieutenant, occupied the old homestead of his father at Southington, South End, where he d. Oct. 18, 1797, aged 75 years. He left his house on the evening of that day, and was found dead in about an hour afterwards, in a path leading eastward from his house. It is supposed that he died in a fit.

The following is a copy of his will :

"In the name of God, amen! I, Josiah Newell, of Southington, in the county of Hartford, and State of Connecticut, being of a sound and disposing mind and memory; therefore, calling to mind the mortality of my body, and knowing that it is appointed to man once to die; do make and ordain this my last will and testament; that is to say, imprimis, my will is that my debts and funeral expenses be all paid and discharged.

"Item unto my well beloved wife, Mary Newell, I give and bequeath to her and her heirs forever, one-third part of my personal estate, and also the use and improvement of one-third part of my real estate during her natural life, or so long as she bears my name.

"Item to my son, Josiah Newell, I give and bequeath to him and his heirs forever the sum of twenty pounds lawful money, to be paid to him out of my estate by my executor hereafter named within two years next after my decease.

"Item unto my son, John Newell, I give and bequeath to him and his heirs forever, the sum of ten pounds lawful money, to be paid to him out of my estate by my executor hereafter named, within two years next after my decease.

"Item unto my daughter, Ruth Day, I give and bequeath to her and to her heirs forever the sum of twenty shillings lawful money, to be paid to her out of my estate by my executor hereafter named within two years next after my decease.

"Item unto my two daughters, Mary Woodruff and Julia Tyler, I give and bequeath to them and to their heirs forever the sum of twenty pounds lawful money; that is to say, to each of them the sum of ten pounds, to be paid out of my estate by my executor hereafter named within two years next after my decease.

"Item unto my grandson, Josiah Newell, I give and bequeath to him and his heirs forever my gun.

"Item unto my son Amos Newell, I give and bequeath to him and his heirs forever the residue and remainder of my whole estate, both real and personal. And I, the said Josiah Newell, testator, do constitute, ordain and appoint my son Amos Newell sole executor of this my last will and testament. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 5th day of October, A. D. 1795.

JOSIAH NEWELL. [SEAL].

"Signed, sealed and delivered in presence of

JOHN CURTISS,
RACHEL CURTISS.

Southington.

John, third son of Josiah Newell (57) and Mary Upson his wife, b. January 15, 1755; m. February 23, 1775, Sybil Andrus, who was b. August 13, 1755, and d. December 5, 1833. In May, 1791, he removed to Durham, Green county, N. Y., with six children. He sold his house and lands to Jonathan Walkley, Sr. He, with two ox-carts containing all his movables, located on the east side of the Catskill mountains, then an almost unbroken wilderness, with fortitude and courage to battle with the disadvantages and sacrifices of many of the comforts of life, to secure for his family the means to be useful to society and the community, to establish schools, laws and good order. He purchased farms for his three sons about three miles west of him. They settled there for a few years and then sold out, two of them removing to Wyoming county, where one died, when the other removed to Buffalo and died also. The third son died soon after.

He was a soldier at three different periods, and was with Gen. Gates at the surrender of Gen. Burgoyne at Ticonderoga. He was the first militia captain of the town. Afterwards he was persuaded by the town officers to keep a public house for the benefit of the trading community, which he did for about twenty years, receiving a liberal support and the confidence of the public generally. He d. at the age of 73, leaving his farm to his youngest son, after paying all the legacies and demands upon it. To him also he committed the care of his wife, who had become blind and dependent. She d. at the age of 78.

Southington.

Olive, daughter of Amos (546) and Lucy (Root) Newell, b. July 20, 1788; m. May 23, 1811, Stephen Walkley. He was born July 8, 1782, in Durham, Conn., his parents being Jonathan and Anna (Bates) Walkley. He came to Southington with his father in 1791, being at that time nine years of age, and located at South End. His youth was spent in storing his mind, and though he had limited school advantages he became a man of large and extended information. In my younger days I remember him as the oracle consulted by everyone on all matters of interest, and he was always found ready to assist by his advice and counsel. From 1805 until his death he kept a diary of current events, and in this is found noted the volumes he at various times drew out of the circulating library, which indicatèd his taste and direction of thought. This diary also shows that he was a close and judicious observer of men and things. In 1805 he received the appointment of County Surveyor. From 1805 to 1810 he taught school in Southington, Berlin and Farmington. In 1814 he began the manufacture of button moulds at South End, which was then ~~and for~~ some years afterwards the business portion of the town. When the Farmington canal was built he took the contract to make all the locks, having as an associate Leonard Johnson. He held the offices of Selectmen, Justice of the Peace and Judge of Probate, and for thirty years after 1812 was continuously in the service of the town. He led the old Whig party in this town for many years, and often made campaign addresses. After Alexander Hamilton was killed by Aaron Burr, he became an enthusiastic follower of this statesman, and studied and wrote for the press upon his theories of finance and government. A labored article of his was printed in one of the Hartford papers. So tenderly did he cherish Hamilton's memory that until the day of his death he could scarcely bear to hear "the duel" spoken of without shedding tears. He was an early friend of the temperance reform, and in 1827 began to deliver addresses upon the subject in the several school districts of the town. He was the organizer of the first Sabbath-school in the town, which was connected with the Congregational church; and it remained an independent organization, subject to the same rules and usages under which it was formed, until 1876, when a change was made. For many years he was treasurer of the Congregational Society, and when he surrendered the office on account of his growing infirmities, a special tribute was paid him in the form of a complimentary vote. Having never made a public profession of religion, his more particular views were never made known to the public. He dissented from the strong Calvinism of Mr. Robinson, who supplied the church in his day. Probably the Quakers had his sympathies as much as any Christian body, he having mingled with them in his early manhood in Pennsylvania; but his family in many ways detected the deep religious feeling that controlled him. Few men, if any, during a period of fifty years exerted a wider and better influence than did he. He d. March 28, 1866. His wife d. of consumption, after several years of patient suffering, January 15, 1858.

He was principally self-educated; studied with Dr. Daniel Porter in Waterbury, Ct., and attended a partial course of medical lectures at Yale, while yet a young man; was induced to practice a few years afterwards by a lack of physicians in Tuscaloosa, Ala.; was examined by the Medical Board in that State and licensed; studied and practiced by himself some years; went into a hospital at New Orleans and attended medical lectures there in the seasons of 1843-4. He at that time undertook a thorough investigation into the causes and proper treatment of yellow fever, which was persisted in by him until the rate of mortality from that disease was reduced from 35 to 5 or 6 per cent. In consequence of his success in this matter he was brought into extensive and continuous practice in Mobile, until compelled to give it up on account of utter exhaustion; has now a large practice in a less laborious field at Troy, Miami county, O.; has received honorary degrees from the medical departments of New York and Pennsylvania.

Anne Caroline Walkley, daughter of Nelson Walkley (791), was born at Tuscaloosa, Ala., July 8, 1836. She was educated in Connecticut, and then returned to her father at Mobile, Ala., where she married James Young and had four children, one of whom d. young. Her husband served in the Confederate army, and d. five or six years after the close of the war.

792

South Orange, N. J.—Wolcott, Ct.

Lucy Ann, eldest daughter of Stephen (781) and Olive (Newell) Walkley, b. April 8, 1814; m. December 28, 1840, Rev. Aaron (Crowell) Beach, son of David Beach, of South Orange, New Jersey. He was pastor of the Congregational church at Wolcott, Ct., from 1842 to 1857. As the eldest daughter among nine children, she early showed the helpful and gentle qualities that made her inexpressibly dear to the whole family. Her religious life, which began early, was deep and fervent, but calm and well regulated. As the wife of a home missionary in a hill town, she was called to much self-denial and unrequited labor. These difficulties she met with uncomplaining cheerfulness and patient fidelity. When domestic affliction was added to this steady toil, there appeared the trustful submission and unruffled self-control which only Christian principle can give to a sensitive heart. To unselfishly hide her own troubles and relieve those of others, to wisely aid her husband's pastoral work, to exemplify "pure religion and undefiled" in her household, was her life work. The memory of her gentle spirit, her devoted piety, her self-forgetful labor, her wise helpfulness as pastor's wife, is still fragrant in the town. She d. April 2, 1853. He m. (2) Jane Talcott, by whom he had two daughters.

Sarah, daughter of Stephen (781) and Olive (Newell) Walkley, b. January 3, 1821; m. June 13, 1840, Orson W. Stow. He was b. May 30, 1820, son of Solomon and Eunice (Shepard) Stow. He united with the church April 8, 1838; graduated at Yale College in 1846, and entered the Divinity School at New Haven the same year, completing the course in 1849. Before applying for ordination his mind was directed into other channels of study, which resulted in his ultimately giving himself to the business of manufacturing. He has proved himself a very successful inventor, being the patentee of over forty different machines, some of them of world-wide reputation. The Peck, Stow & Wilcox Company are largely indebted to him for useful and valuable patents. But while thus engaged in secular business, he no less directed his attention to the same great ends which led him into a course of theological study. From the formation of the second Congregational (Plantsville) church, he has been one of its most efficient members, and his heart, words and gifts are freely bestowed upon every worthy public object, whether of the town or church. He has represented Southington several times in the Legislature, and proved himself a man of more than ordinary ability and solid worth.

He enlisted in Company A, 7th Regiment Connecticut Volunteers, in September, 1861, and served at the taking of Port Royal in the following December. From that time until March, 1862, he was engaged in the siege of Fort Pulaski. The severe night labors of that siege undermined his health and brought on various disorders, and he was sent to the hospital at Beaufort, S. C., where he d. July 4, 1862. He was a modest, manly fellow, silently bearing his part in severe duty, faithful as a soldier, genial as a companion, an uncomplaining burden-bearer, cheerful in performing unappreciated work, and as a Christian conscientious and honest, but revealing his religion oftener by deeds than words.

Barkhamsted—Winsted, Ct.—Mentor—Painesville, O.

Grandison, son of Solomon and Damaris (Johnson) Newell (891), b. May 2, 1785; m. April 16, 1807, Betsey Smith. She was b. in Winsted, Aug. 28, 1784, where they resided until 1819, when they removed to Painesville, and afterward to Mentor, Ohio. He was a man of limited education, but remarkable in many respects, being very sagacious and having a very retentive memory. It is said of him by one who knew him well, that he was very sprightly; had a great facility for changing property; nothing ever seemed to disturb his equanimity; he would waken easily, but never seemed troubled to get to sleep. During the latter part of his life he had frequent illnesses, lasting a week or two at a time, being afflicted with kidney disease ; but with the same indomitable energy, would be up and at it again. Before removing to Ohio he made a bellows and commenced the foundry business, making clock bells by hand. He at one time peddled tin ; at another time he peddled clocks in several of the States. He would exchange his whole load for other property ; and would take cattle, leather, goods, etc., and exchange again for, other goods. It was while on one of these trading trips that he saw the Mentor property he afterward owned, and bargained for it. On his removal from Connecticut he took quite a colony with him, of which he was the leading spirit. At Mentor he owned a saw mill, chair factory, plow shop, foundry and farm, which he kept running constantly, and manufactured the best of every variety of goods found in the market. He shipped lumber to New York, plows to Michigan, and chairs over Ohio as far as it would do to freight them. Chairs of his manufacture, over forty years old, are to-day in constant dining-room use among his descendants in Painesville. In Mentor Mr. Newell was called rich, and, according to the standard of those times, probably was so. He conceived the idea of making Fairport a Chicago, through the means of railways, by connecting Lake Erie and the Ohio river at Fairport and Belleville by railroad. Having identified himself with the railway, he with others took out a charter, and made preliminary surveys. He subscribed for $60,000 worth of stock at the Mellville end of the line. They borrowed $40,000 of the Government to build a bridge over Grand river, and completed three miles of railway from Fairport to Painesville, but were never able to put anything but horse cars on the track. Mr. Newell would doubtless have accomplished much of his plans had there been men like himself to co-operate with. He was so determined to push it through that he made great sacrifices and took great risks. He was always of the opinion that, notwithstanding the lack of co-operation, had it not been for the disastrously hard times in 1837 he would have succeeded. This, coupled with his having endorsed other persons' paper, compelled him to apply to the Ohio Legislature, which passed a bill releasing him from the payment of the money borrowed from the Government. He paid every cent borrowed from private persons, amounting to several thousand dollars.

Kirtland, a few miles from Mr. Newell's residence, was the birthplace of that modern abomination, Mormonism. The principal families of the Mormons were the Rigdons, Pratts and Smiths. They didn't like Mr. Newell and he didn't like them and was determined to root them out. On one occasion, Mr. Newell hearing that Elder Pratt intended to preach in Mentor, raised a crowd and prevented him. They prosecuted him, but were defeated. Mr. Newell prosecuted Joe Smith, Jr., and Sydney Rigdon for illegal banking or for issuing unauthorized bank paper. A fine of $1,000 was imposed upon the defendants, half of which was paid to the informer, the plaintiff, Mr. Newell.

The following is a copy of Mr. Newell's own manuscript :

Judgment obtained against Joseph Smith, Jr., and Sydney Rigdon for $1,000 each at the fall term of 1838, in Geauga county, for issuing unauthorized bank paper. Samuel D. Rounds, the complainant, I bought off, and gave him $100. I have been to all the vexation and trouble, and paid all costs from the first commencement. The trouble and expense from first to last with the Mormon host cost me more than $1,000 to rid them from their stronghold in Kirtland, Geauga county, state of Ohio.

G. N.

The Mormons then tried to assassinate him. Their Prophet had a revelation that Mr. Newell must be put out of the way. Three men who were detailed for the service, watched one whole evening at his window for a good opportunity, but their heart failed them when he at length stepped to his door. Afterwards, while returning through Kirtland home, where he had been attending to business, late at night, he entered a ravine, near the flats, where the "destroying angels" were stationed. One of them took aim at Mr. Newell, but providentially his gun missed fire.

Mr. Newell then attached the Mormon printing establishment, and knowing that they would burn it rather than allow it to come into his possession, he hired some men to guard the place with a gun which he procured for them. But while the men were absent to procure a drink, the Mormons took possession of the establishment, gun and all.

Subsequently Mr. Newell had a revelation that there was not sufficient room for both Joe Smith and himself, and that Joe was to be killed. This message he was careful should reach Joe Smith in a very confidential manner. There were many schisms and sects among the Mormons at that time, and everything was not altogether lovely. Part of the time one party would have the power and rule until another party gained the ascendancy. When Mr. Newell perceiving that there was disaffection in the camp, employed some of the disaffected Mormons, by means of whom he was enabled in the end to defeat them, and carry the war into their own midst. Consequently, about three o'clock one bitter cold morning in early spring, a tavern keeper in Portage county was awakened by a party of travelers. Knowing the Mormon leaders, he inquired of them, "Why, what called you out so early?" "Oh," they replied, "it was that devil of a Newell!" They had had a revelation that he was going to kill them, and were commanded to depart, leaving their families to follow after them, which they accordingly did. The temple, costing $80,000, was built principally of shell stone, cemented on the outside, excepting the four corners, which were curb sandstone. It was afterwards sold at administrator's sale to William L. Perkins, Esq., for $150.

On the morning of May 2, 1874, Mr. Newell remarked, while sitting at the breakfast table, that it was his 88th birthday, and that he felt in better health than he had for a long time previous. Two or three hours afterward, while walking to town, about a mile distant, carrying a basket on his arm, he was run over by a runaway horse, inflicting fatal injuries. He d. June 10, 1874, and was interred in Evergreen cemetery. Betsey, his wife, d. Oct. 28, 1859.

The following is an extract from a letter written by a gentleman who recently paid a visit to Kirtland, and saw there the old Mormon Temple :

* * "Here, too, in 1835, the zealous and fiery Grandison Newell organized his platoon of kindred spirits, and upon the threshold of a Christian church stoned Orson Pratt, the disciple of the prophet of Mormon and priest of the church of Latter Day Saints, of Kirtland. Here Joseph, whose surname was Smith, and Hiram, his brother, were wont to be seen, and the scrip and shinplasters, wild-cat and red-dog—the greenbacks of the Holy First National Bank of Mormon—were wont to circulate, under misgivings and protests, till the fullness of time, when all mismanaged banks, sacred and profane alike, must burst.

* "Being only four miles from the first temple of the Latter Day Saints, I could not forego the convenient opportunity to visit the Kirtland temple. So about four o'clock Sunday the handsome bays were harnessed, and in half an hour we had glided over the smooth hill roads to one of the most romantic villages I have ever seen, in Ohio. If I do not accept the philosophy or cherish the faith of the Latter Day Saints, I certainly admire the good taste exhibited in the selection of the site of their first temple. The building itself is very large, but by no means handsome. It seems to be an architectural cross between an old Connecticut Presbyterian meeting house and a Rhode Island cotton factory. It stands upon a high bluff on the west bank of a branch of the Chagrin river, facing the rising sun. It overlooks other lesser mounts and deep valleys, like those around Jerusalem. The principal one, lying to the east, is as delightful as the vale of Avoca, where the bright waters meet. It is the valley of Jehoshaphat to the modern temple builders, and the beautiful stream that meanders through its grassy meadows is to this valley what the sweet gliding Kidron is in the legends of the dark-eyed and scattered children of Judah.

"The shades of a lovely evening were approaching, the lowing herd wound slowly o'er the lea, drowsy tinklings lulled the distant fold, and we took our departure from this serene and quiet place.

"The good people of Kirtland, whose hearts are cheered and gladdened by a dearer and more ancient faith, should, nevertheless, cherish this old temple as a landmark in the processions of the generations. Preserve it. Utilize it as a town house, and three thousand years hence, when the English language shall be laid beside the Latin, Greek and Sanscrit as dead, learned professors and enthusiastic students will come to the ruins of the temple of Mormon, to try to divine something of the old faith, and to decipher and translate the legend and inscription upon the tablet above its portals.

Youngstown, O.—San Francisco.

Saloma, daughter of Grandison (905) and Betsey (Smith) Newell, b. May 24, 1811; m. March 30, 1828, Harvey Sawyer. They removed to Youngstown, O., in 1841, where he went into the stove and plow foundry business with William S. Parmly. He sold out his share of the business to him in 1846, and with three others built the Eagle furnace—the first furnace built in Youngstown for the reduction of iron ores by raw bituminous coal. The company met such reverses in the disasters of the iron interests a few years afterwards that they were obliged to suspend operations. Mr. Sawyer sold out his interest, and in company with Wells and Hall, of Youngstown, built a stove and plow foundry and machine shop—the first machine shop erected there. During the gold excitement of 1851 Mr. Sawyer disposed of his interest in the foundry and machine shop, and took the overland route to California. He was partially successful, and was about to take the steamer for home, via Panama, his friends expecting him, when the Frazier river excitement broke out with violence. He had only made about five thousand dollars by his ventures, and determined to make one more effort to obtain wealth. He went to Frazier River, and joined a Company which was building a dam. A freshet swept away the dam before it was finished, and left the Company penniless. He took the next steamer to San Francisco, and went to work in a brass foundry, where he remained two weeks, when he was prostrated by typhus fever, and d. November 9, 1864, aged 45 years. He was buried in Yerba Buena Cemetery, San Francisco.

Orlin, son of Grandison (905) and Betsey (Smith) Newell, b. December 3, 1813, in Barkhamsted; m. April 13, 1840, Lucy Ann, daughter of Captain Baxter. She d. January 15, 1876. He removed to Mentor, Ohio, with his parents at the age of six years. He remained there until 1849, when he removed to Madison, where he resided until 1865, when he emigrated to Michigan, settling in Antwerp, Van Buren county. At an early age he chose the occupation of farmer, and up to the time of his death was following his favorite pursuit. During the ten years that Mr. Newell resided in Michigan he made a host of friends, and we can truthfully say not an enemy. He was one of God's noblest works—an honest man, a faithful husband, and a kind and indulgent father. He leaves a wife, three daughters and a son to lament his loss, in which they have the sympathy of all who knew him. Stricken suddenly with the disease which terminated so fatally, he lingered some three days in intense suffering, when the angel of death came to complete his work. Beautiful even in death, a smile rested upon his countenance, and his happy spirit returned to the God who gave it. The funeral took place from his residence, and was attended by a large concourse of friends and acquaintances, the services being conducted by the Rev. J. R. Stark, of the M. E. church at Paw Paw.

Grieve not for him you loved so well,
Though friendships chain is riven;
Let your last link with Jesus dwell,
And re-unite in Heaven.

James, son of Joel (893) and Lucy (Newell) Allen, b. Aug. 4, 1781; m. June 23, 1808, Asenath Bradley, daughter of Hemingway Bradley. He was a merchant in Southington. Joel Root built a store for Mr. Allen in what is now Plantsville, a few doors south of the corner, on the road leading to Atwater's mills, nearly opposite the old tavern stand. He had a bottle of "black bitters" that he drew from every morning as an appetizer. His wife, in cleaning house, by mistake put in its place a bottle of laudanum, of which he partook to the amount of a gill. On discovering the mistake he was kept on a rapid walk the entire day to prevent his falling asleep.

Mark, son of Asahel (58) and Hannah (Woodruff) Newell, was b. October 17, 1758, and baptized in Southington, by Rev. Benjamin Chapman, five days afterwards. He m. (1) Phebe, daughter of Rev. Elijah Sill, of New Fairfield. She d. October 26, 1809, aged 53 years. He m. (2) April 16, 1819, Zerish, widow of Ard Gridley and daughter of Josiah Andrews. She was b. June 18, 1768, in Southington. He was a physician, and lived for a time at Guilford, Ct. In 1786 he removed to the northern part of Southington, on a place consisting of a small dwelling house and eight acres of land he had bought of Ashbel Gridley. On this place he afterwards built a commodious dwelling house, where he remained during his life. Dr. Newell commenced practice at Guilford, where his first child was born. From thence he removed to North Branford, where he resided until after the birth of his third child. Phebe Sill, his first wife, was born May 27, 1756, and was highly educated at Litchfield. His first residence in Southington was where the late Mrs. Sylvia Beach lately lived. His practice was never large, and most of his time was spent in farming. Dr. Newell entered the army as a private, and afterwards assisted Dr. Theodore Wadsworth, in the Revolutionary War, probably acting as apothecary's clerk and aiding in surgical operations. He studied with Dr. Potter, of Wolcott, and practiced with Dr. Baldwin, of New Milford. A brother of Dr. Potter afterwards studied with Dr. Newell.

This story is related of him : In the Company of which he was a member were many very young men, and Capt. Sloper, fearing they might not stand fire, said to them : "Boys, if our mothers should see us, they'd all cry; but we'll do what we're able." Just then Gen. Washington had ordered a retreat, and the "boys" fell back in great disorder. Dr. Newell, said Washington, rode a bald-faced horse, which, when a cannon ball whizzed close by, turned and jumped a stone wall. The Doctor, hearing the noise, fell to the ground, and the ball ploughed along not many feet from him. His mother, Hannah (Woodruff) Newell, m. (2) Capt. Daniel Sloper. Between them they had five sons in the service—she three and he two. Dr. Newell d. January 9, 1829, aged 70.

Asahel, son of Samuel (897) and Martha (Lewis) Newell, b. May 20, 1788, in Southington; m. Matilda Doolittle, of Cheshire. She d. June 3, 1820, aged 23 years. He m. (2) May 27, 1822, Minerva, daughter of Capt. Philemon and Mary Ann (Matthews) Woodruff, who was b. in Southington 1798. She d. May 24, 1831, of consumption, aged 33. He m. (3) February 12, 1832, Polly, daughter of Robert and Mehitabel (Clark) Sloper, b. February 16, 1802, in Southington. He resided on East street, Southington; was a farmer by occupation, and quite literary in his tastes. Especially devoted to antiquarian researches, he took much interest in the genealogy of the Newell family, spending much time in the collection of records. He d. April 25, 1872, after a severe illness of two weeks. His funeral was attended by Rev. Irenas Atkins, of Bristol, a life long friend and brother Mason. He was buried by the fraternity April 25, 1872, at the age of 84 years. He was a communicant of the Episcopal Church, his name appearing on the records as early as May 4, 1820. He was chosen Society's Committee in 1823.

The following resolutions were passed by Friendship Lodge No. 33, F. A. M., at a regular meeting held May 5, 1872:

"WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God, our great Creator, to remove from us by death Brother Asahel Newell, who for nearly three score years has been a true and faithful member of this Lodge,

"Resolved, That we as a Lodge mourn the loss of our venerated Brother, who, through a long life, by his virtuous conduct has illustrated the sublime teachings of Masonry.

"Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved family of the deceased our sincere and heartfelt sympathy in this affliction, trusting that it may lead them to dwell with gratitude on past mercies as pledges of future faithfulness and love.

"FRANK CADWELL, Secretary."

The death of such a man as Mr. Newell deserves more than a passing comment. Few live to such an age, and fewer still enjoy the youthful cheerfulness of mind that he possessed. Always ready with a story, with quick repartee, he seemed, when with his children gathered around him, the youngest of the flock. In his habits of life he was a model man. Of powerful physique, strong and vigorous, never breaking himself down by the use of tobacco, or free use of intoxicating drinks; early to rest, early to rise his motto; spending much of his time with his books and papers; keeping well posted on all matters of public interest, having filled many offices in the gift of his townsmen, he has left an example radiant with excellence. A great fondness for antiquarian studies led him into the study of geology, and his library abounds with valuable works on the subject. For the last ten years of his life he had been interested in the genealogy of the Newell family, and preparing a history of the family to leave to his descendants. He became a member of the Masonic order in 1814, doing much in the time of the Morgan excitement to keep Friendship Lodge in existence. He followed to the grave two companions in life, and of eleven children but three survive his loss. He was a voter for 63 years, and, to use his own expression, never lost a Freeman's meeting. His habits of observation made him very agreeable company, and his loss fell heavily on those endeared to him by family ties. An extensive library, abounding in rare works, shows his taste.

The following is an extract from a lengthy description, in the St. Paul Pioneer-Press of November 17, 1875, of the Rev. John Mattocks' funeral obsequies, which were attended by a very large concourse of persons :

'Yesterday, the first white snow of winter, which lay like a silent shroud over the city of the dead, was disturbed to allow mourning friends to lay beneath the cold sod the earthly remains of one of the truest Christian men who ever adorned a community—the Rev. John Mattocks. Early in the forenoon a large number of those who revered the faithful man in life sought the house of mourning, to gain a last view of his loved face; and after the hour of 11, when the remains were removed to the First Presbyterian church, where he had so long labored, at least one thousand persons gazed upon the placid features, on which no trace of suffering lingered. Among the visitors were many scholars of the public schools, to whom the departed was a firm and faithful friend.

* * “As early as 1 o’clock the church began to fill with people from all classes of the community, every sect, nationality, color, trade and profession being represented, and half an hour before the time appointed for the services the church was filled in every available point, while hundreds turned away from the doors, unable to gain admittance. * The Rev. E. D. Neill, his predecessor, made an address, in substance as follows:

* “In estimating the deceased as a man, we cannot forget his naturalness. The tendency of modern civilization is to repression. Our town and city life frequently destroys our individuality: we dare not be ourselves. We feel that we must work and talk, and pray and think like our neighbors. There was a charm in the deceased because of his freedom from all conventionalities. He was always himself. In dress, in modes of thought, and in the expression of his sentiments he modeled after no one. Amid the glare of western prosperity he was the plain, unaffected, outspoken man. *

“As a citizen his absence will be marked. His professional life did not make him a recluse. God had given him neighbors and placed him in a busy and bustling community, and he used the power which had been given him to make this world better, brighter and happier.

* “He was a valued member of the Historical Society and the Academy of Natural Science. He loved to contemplate the forces of Nature. The upheaval of the rocks, the deposit of drift piles in streets by the immense glaciers of a different pre-historic period, the narrow threads of silver and of copper running through the Lake Superior region, were to him objects of intense interest. His lectures upon these subjects refuted the foolish but oft-repeated statement that the teachers of religion are unfriendly to scientific research. Had he not been occupied with higher duties, he would have made a successful professor of physical sciences.

“But our consolation to-day comes from remembering him as a Christian. When as a young man he gave himself to Christ, it was not without a struggle. He had commenced the study of the law. He was interested in public questions with which he had become acquainted while his father was one of the representatives of Vermont in the Congress of the Republic; but after the decision was made to live for Christ and not for himself, he cared not for worldly honor and emolument. To him the position of pastor was the highest on earth. It was not to be entered upon unadvisedly, and like the sacred marriage bonds, the pastoral relation was not to be lightly severed. He loved to preach. With the Psalmist he could say, "How precious are Thy thoughts to me." * *

"At the grave the brief services consisted of a tribute to the memory of the deceased, touchingly delivered by Rev. Mr. McKibben, and a prayer and benediction by Rev. Mr. Breed, after which the sods were replaced, and the body of Rev. John Mattocks was forever lost to view under the trees and flowers which he loved in life, as the expression of the goodness and love of that Heavenly Father 'who doeth all things well.'"

1423.

New York—Rochester.

Ann Eliza, daughter of James Harvey (1299) and Rachel (Paddock) Newell, b. March 12, 1798; m. January 31, 1819, Cyrus Hubbard, of Westchester, N. Y. She d. November 22, 1829.

At the age of three, Mr. Hubbard was so unfortunate as to lose his mother by death. He and his brother were removed to their grandfather's, at

Sing Sing. It was under the tuition of this godly couple that his character was formed, and he was well fitted for the great battle of life. At the age of 14 he went to New York to engage in mercantile business; was successful, being promoted from time to time; became very popular and made many warm friends. He was offered a situation in a wholesale house, his uncle Zenas Newell being one of the firm. While here he became converted, and united with the West Presbyterian church, on Carmine street, New York, under the pastoral care of Rev. T. H. Skinner. It was then he married; and while paying his addresses to Miss Peck, her father, a staunch old Presbyterian, was anxious to make some inquiries as to the standing of the family of the one who was seeking his daughter. An elder of the Sing Sing church calling upon him, gave him the opportunity. He inquired as to the respectability of the Newell family, and received from the aged elder the following reply: "I would rather descend from that stock than from any sovereign now sitting on the throne!" January 1st, 1849, a vacancy occurred in one of the largest wholesale houses in New York. The position being one of great responsibility, his friends who knew him best secured the position for him. At the close of the year he received, as a New Year's gift, an extra hundred dollars from the head of the firm, to show his gratification at the manner in which the arduous duties of the past year had been performed. In October, 1851, entered into a large retail store in Rochester, which proved a success until 1857, when one after another of the country merchants indebted to him failing, he was compelled to succumb; but afterwards rallied again. In February, 1860, his store was burglarized, and $5,000 worth of silks stolen. After three days' search the silks were all recovered—found packed ready for shipment. He continued in the mercantile business until 1872, when he accepted a position in the Rochester paper, being already a director in the same. Is a member of the old Washington street Presbyterian church, now the Central; remained in the choir for 21 years; both himself and wife have been and are still connected with the Sabbath-school. In 1856 he was elected Trustee: in 1866 he was ordained Elder, both of which positions he still holds.

1497. East Saginaw, Mich.

Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Seth Paine (1482) and Sarah (Francis) Newell, b. October 19, 1846, m. October 14, 1868, Charles C. Spencer. Resided East Saginaw, Michigan, where she d. June 26, 1876. She died as she had lived, a Christian, trusting in the blessed Saviour as her Redeemer.

From the Saginaw Daily Courier of June 28th, 1876, the following extract is taken :

"Died, in this city, June 26th, Mary Elizabeth (Newell) Spencer, wife of Charles C. Spencer, aged 29 years.

"When the expected death of Mrs. Charles C. Spencer was spoken of by one to another last week, an outburst of sympathy went forth, but as day by day passed, and the fears of friends were not realized, hope was aroused that the beloved wife, mother, friend, would yet be spared for many years. But this hope has been disappointed; and the grief of those most afflicted is even more intense by reason of this slight reprieve. The bereaved husband, the orphaned children, the many mourning friends, can each and all feel that theirs is no common loss. She that has departed had so endeared herself to those with whom she was intimately related, and to those with whom she came in contact through life, that the parting has become hard indeed. Coming to this city but a few short years ago, a young wife, full of healthy vitality and kindliness, it seemed as though a long life of womanly activity and cheerful affection for others would be vouchsafed to her. And yet in these few brief years she accomplished more than many do who attain to the full age allotted to humanity. What can be said more than we have said? And yet the knowledge that others do sympathize with us in our bereavement, tends to assuage our grief. That it is sincere in this case there is not the least doubt. Mrs. Spencer had so closely endeared herself to such a large number by her winning manner and her helpful ways, that she cannot be remembered otherwise than with affection and regret. But our sympathy is also with the husband, the little daughter, and the friends who mourn. The infant, too, of such a brief existence; born at the expense of the mother's life: each and all have a claim upon us which will not be ignored. It is a helpful thought, also, in such seasons, to remember that those who thus leave us have only gone a little in advance perhaps, and that they thereafter have a watchful care over the welfare of those whom they loved so well when on earth."

HARTFORD, SS.

FARMINGTON, May ye 31, A. D. 1745. }

Samuel Newell, Senior, who executed this deed, Came in person & acknowledged the same to be his act & Deed Before

JOHN HART, Justis Peace.

In the name of God, Amen. The last will and testament of Samuel Newell (46), the 2d of Farmington, in the county of Hartford and colony of Connecticut, in New England, made this 24th day of June, 1750, viz.: The said Samuel Newell being at this time in health of body through the goodness of God, and in the possession of my reason, for which I bless His holy name; but grown into age so that I cannot expect to continue in this life very long, I am therefore desirous to prevent trouble among my surviving children, do make and ordain this my last will and testament, and do desire my executor, whom I shall hereafter appoint, to see that this my last will and testament may be duly executed. I desire to commit my soul and body to God as my Creator, to Jesus Christ as my merciful redeemer, through the merits of whose blood and perfect obedience I hope to obtain salvation, first as touching such wordly estate that God has entrusted me with. My will is that all just debts and claims are paid. Item: I give and bequeath unto my well beloved wife the use of one-third part of my movable estate during her natural life, and to her disposal forever, tools excepted. 2d. I give and bequeath unto my two oldest sons Samuel (53) and Isaac (54) twenty shillings apiece in money, with what I have already given them. 3d. I give and bequeath unto my daughter, Sarah Fiske, the sum of one pound money, with what I have already given to her. 4thly. I give and bequeath unto my daughter Mercy Newell, and to her heirs forever, two hundred pounds money. 5thly. I give and bequeath unto my four youngest sons, Josiah, Asahel, Solomon and David, to them, their heirs and assigns forever, all of the remaining part of my estate, both real and personal, to be divided in equal proportion between them. 6thly. I do constitute and appoint my two sons, Samuel and Isaac, to be whole and sole executors to this my last will and testament. In witness whereof I do every part thereof, I, the said Samuel, on the day and year above mentioned, both signed, sealed and declared this to be my last will and testament.

SAMUEL NEWELL. [SEAL.]

The following account of the celebration of Thomas Wilder's (906) 70th wedding anniversary, clipped from the Cleveland (O.) Herald, arrived too late for insertion with the sketch of the aged couple printed on page 142 :

"The seventieth anniversary of the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilder was celebrated at the residence of their son, G. N. Wilder of this city, on Friday, January 25th, 1878.

"Mr. Wilder was born at Barkhamsted, Conn., on the 15th day of January, 1785—Mrs. Wilder at the same place on the 5th day of April, 1788, and they were married at Barkhamsted, on the 25th of January, 1808. The first seven years they resided at Harpersfield, Delaware county, New York. They then returned to Barkhamsted and resided on the home farm of the Wilders thirty-two years, caring for his father and mother till their death, when he settled the estate and the farm became his. The farm had been his father's, and grandfather's and was in the family seventy-seven years, when he sold it in 1848 and came to Painesville, where they have since resided. Mr. Wilder was one of a family of thirteen children, six sons and seven daughters; Mrs. Wilder one of a family of ten, seven sons and three daughters, and they are the only ones now living of either.

"The aged couple retain their mental faculties remarkably well, the bride especially. She seemed to be full of enjoyment, appearing as sprightly as those many years younger. She was dressed in black silk, white scarf about her shoulders and bouquet on her bosom, and it is safe to say a more lovely bride of ninety was never seen. * *

"A time was spent in social converse, after which prayer was offered by Hon. William L. Perkins. Then a few moments of conversation, and the hymn "Loving Kindness" having been sung at the request of the bride, prayer was offered by Judge R. Hitchcock, the bride's bible-class teacher, after which greetings and kind wishes were given by the friends, and a number of gentlemen kissed the bride with a vim that savored of old times. *

Miss Una Holcomb, a great-great-niece, gave some very fine music on the piano. The two Misses Fisher, granddaughters of the aged couple, sang two beautiful songs, with piano accompaniment, in true artistic style. The company then joined with them in singing "Blest be the tie that binds," "Rock of Ages," "Coronation," and other sacred songs, the bride's voice joining in sweetly as a girl's of eighteen. There were present of their children one son and four daughters of the six now living—one daughter residing in Connecticut could not be present, much to the regret of all. They had lost one son in infancy, and one well known to this community, Thomas Wilder, Jr., who lived in our midst many years, one of our most respected and public spirited citizens. The five daughters are all living—the oldest in her seventieth year, the youngest in her forty-ninth. Their living descendants are six children, fifteen grandchildren and sixteen great-grandchildren. No one of those present had ever before heard of an instance of seventy years of wedded life, and were glad to be present. There was nothing to mar the pleasure of the occasion, and the guests finally separated, feeling that they had had an exceedingly enjoyable and pleasant time."

From another published account of this anniversary celebration, the following additional extracts are taken :

* "It was a solemn event in Barkhamsted when Thomas Wilder and his cheerful wife and friendly family bid good-bye to their neighbors, and many sorrowful expressions of the old and the saddened countenances of the young are memories after many years. * * And now this venerable gentleman at the age of ninety-three years, and his most estimable wife at the age of ninety years, celebrate the seventieth anniversary of their wedded life. We cannot recall a like instance. Five of their children were present to participate in the joys of the occasion—Mrs. A. P. Axtell, aged 58 years; Mr. G. N. Wilder, aged 55 years; Mrs. E. B. Adams, aged 53 years; Mrs. A. M. Fisher, aged 48 years. Mrs. Joseph Shepard, aged 61 years, residing in Connecticut, was the only child living who was absent. * * *

“Mr. Wilder was born in 1785; his wife, whose maiden name was Newell, in 1788. Grandison Newell, long a citizen of Painesville, now deceased, who nearly fifty years ago was the Atilla the Hun to the Saints of Mormon, whose tabernacle was at Kirtland, and whose forsaken temple at every setting sun still casts its gloomy shadow over a valley as lovely as Hinnom, was her brother. There were present a goodly number of aged persons, friends and neighbors of the good old couple, bearing names which sound familiarly of old Connecticut, such as Timothy Rockwell, Norman Loomis, W. L. Perkins, Reuben Hitchcock, and W. L. Giddings, the last a nephew, we believe, of the renowned Joshua, of the Abolitionists. * *

“Mr. Wilder lived four years under the old Confederation. The fathers of the Revolution were mostly living in his boyhood. The French revolution opened upon his childhood. He was fourteen years old when Washington died. He has lived in a culminating age. He has seen the tea-kettle of Watts develop into a steamboat on the Hudson and a Cunarder on the ocean. He has seen the railroad span continents, and the telegraph 'put a girdle round the earth in forty minutes.' He has lived to witness the abolition of serfdom by the Czar of Russia and the emancipation of the slave by the proclamation. And now three generations tender their respectful and affectionate greetings to the groom and bride of seventy years, and earnestly pray for at least one other such anniversary of their wedded life."
